

I would like to visit Alaska to see the Rivers frozen. And the polar bears. I would also like to go fishing up there and to see how big the Rivers are. And go kayaking in the rivers. I would also like to see the Ice glaciers and to see how tall they really are. I would like to go mountain climbing because they have really big mountains. I would also like to go snowboarding off some of the hills. I would like to go dog sledding too and I like the way the dogs look. I think they look like a wolf in the face. and I would like to see how cold it is up there. I would like to be at the top of the mountains to see all kinds of stuff. I would like to camp out up there and have a fire. I would like to see how they build houses out of ice. I think they look cool. and I say it's pretty cold up there too. I too see the tallest mountain too. I would like to camp in a igloo for one day. I would like to see how deep the snow gets up there. and I would like to go skiing off one of the mountains. I the furry coats look up there too. I would like to have a snowmobile up there too. I would also like to have a jet ski up on the mountains. to go surfing in the oceans.

This response is considered flawed. A low degree of proficiency is reflected. The writer selects Alaska as a place to visit and provides a rambling list of specific reasons to go there. There is little to no development of any of these reasons and no organization. In addition, the writing contains serious errors in spelling and sentence structure.
